
ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATION CONSENT FORM

This form outlines the guidelines for electronic communication and documents your consent to use electronic communication with your or your child’s doctor.

In a medical emergency, do not use electronic communication. Dial 911 or proceed to your nearest emergency department.

Email: Email is not a private form of communication, but is more like a postcard that can be viewed by anyone with access to certain areas of the internet. Email should not be used for urgent or emergent matters, as your doctor may not check email frequently enough to respond in a timely manner. Email may be used to address routine issues only (e.g. appointment times, routine follow-up inquiries, questions about prescriptions, medication refills, referrals, billing questions). If email is used, please note the following:

- 1) All clinically relevant emails regarding care with Link Psychiatry, Inc. will be included in the patient’s medical record.
- 2) If you have not received a response within 24 hours to an email you sent to your doctor, please phone your doctor directly to follow-up.
- 3) Either you or your doctor may request via email or letter to discontinue using email as a means of communication.

Text Messaging: Your doctor may use a work cell phone that receives and sends text messages. Text messaging is to be used for routine issues only (e.g. appointment times, routine follow-up inquiries, questions about prescriptions, medication refills, referrals, billing questions). Text messaging should not be used for urgent or emergent matters, as your doctor may not check texts frequently enough to respond in a timely manner. If text messaging is used, please note the following:

- 1) All clinically relevant text message content regarding care with Link Psychiatry will be included in the patient’s medical record.
- 2) If you have not received a response within 24 hours to a text message you sent to your doctor, please phone your doctor directly to follow-up.
- 3) Either you or your doctor may request in writing to discontinue using text messaging as a means of communication.

DISCLAIMER: Link Psychiatry is not responsible for electronic communications that are lost due to technical failures. Although we have implemented reasonable technical safeguards, we cannot and do not guarantee the privacy, security, or confidentiality of electronic communications. Due to the nature of electronic communications, there is a potential that emails and/or text messages may be intercepted, altered, forwarded, or read by others.

You should not communicate electronically with your doctor if any of the foregoing presents a concern to you.

I acknowledge that I have read and fully understand this consent form and that I voluntarily request the use of electronic communications with Link Psychiatry.
